Dear Jim,

I'm glad to hear from you. Personally, I find museums a great source of knowledge and beneficial to study.

Actually, my classmates and I often go to museums and attend exhibitions of all kinds. Such visits have helped us gain access to excellent resources and fresh perspectives on different subjects.

Once, in order to better understand "Ancient Chinese Inventions" in the history class, my class went to China Science and Technology Museum. Viewing delicate exhibits and listening to the guide's introduction, I was deeply impressed by the wisdom and creativity of ancient Chinese people.

Many museums also offer online shows or lectures nowadays. Visiting their websites proves to be a rewarding experience.

By the way, London is home to many fantastic museums. How do you make the most of them? Do write and tell me about it.

Yours,

Li Hua
